Mr. [REDACTED] discussed the future of the S&T Course with Mr. [REDACTED] on 8 May. Mr. [REDACTED] agreed to forward his views on S&T training to Mr. [REDACTED] who will in turn forward the memorandum to OTR. Mr. [REDACTED] impression is that Mr. [REDACTED] does not feel it practical to attempt specialized training of S&T case officers in a training course. He believes the S&T case officer should be trained on an individual basis for a specific assignment either in his staff or somewhere in DD/P. He apparently feels there is a need for the present type of orientation course for the general case officer assigned to work on the Soviet target, or for DD/I officers concerned with problems bearing on S&T. Mr. [REDACTED] is uncertain whether this course should be given in the Intelligence or Operations School. A final possibility is to present a two week course on S&T requirements and operational discussions of S&T problems. This would be for DD/P case officer.

Our feeling is that a course should be available for all Agency elements, much along the lines of the present course. The final week would be devoted to S&T operations if there is a demand. If there is no demand for the operational portion it would be eliminated from the course in question. The course would be announced as an annual affair. Enrollment would be limited to twenty-five. If registration exceeds enrollment by more than twelve the course could be repeated to accommodate the demand. This matter will be discussed further after receipt of Mr. [REDACTED] paper.
